The Government has sought peoples' cooperation to bring about an improvement in the quality of forests and to enhance the scientific management of forests. Emphasizing the need to appreciate the true value of forest in the growth and development of our country, Minister of State (Independent Charge) of Environment, Forest and Climate Change, Mr. Prakash Javadekar, said on March 21, that every person must plant at least 10-15 trees during one's lifetime and care for the trees, so that trees can create an "Oxygen Bank".

He added that just as money is deposited in banks, each person must plant one tree after every five years to create the fixed deposit of an "Oxygen Bank". He pointed out that one change that has been brought about in plantation of trees in nurseries is that plants that attain a height of up to 6 feet are planted to ensure a high survival rate. The Minister said that students are the agents of change, as it is the students who can nurture and enhance the sensitivity towards environment.

Speaking on the occasion, Minister of Environment and Forest of Delhi government, Mr. Imran Hussain said that the Delhi government will spare no effort to make Delhi greener.
